Looking at the levees

■ Citizens invited to view, comment on 'environmental impacts' of upcoming flood protection work

WILLARD CHOW
West Sacramento's Flood Protection Manager

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Next Tuesday will offer West Sacramento residents an early step in a long march towards what city leaders hope will be "200 year" flood protection.

Residents are invited to attend either a 3:30 p.m. or a 6:30 p.m. meeting at city hall to hear the possible "environmental impacts" of plans to upgrade the city levees. The draft Environmental Impact Report, or EIR, is mandated by state law as West Sacramento draws up its plans to shore up, reinforce and otherwise rebuild the walls that protect its borders from flooding.

The levees are being studied in individual portions, or "reaches," that face different problems like under-seepage or through-seepage. With different problems and different original construction methods, they will also require customized solutions.

"At this point, we have different alternatives," said Willard Chow, West Sacramento's Flood Protection Manager. "When we finish our problem identification and alternatives analysis, the alternatives will be selected."

Tuesday offers a pair of "scoping" meetings – citizens can hear about projected environmental impacts such as possible habitat destruction, and they can offer their own comments on impacts. The city's scientists will then have to respond to those comments as the EIR is refined.

"Different 'reaches' have different hurdles," Chow told the News-Ledger yesterday. "Some areas do have habitat issues, some areas are much more difficult for (levee) construction due to proximity to structures."

With help from both local taxpayers and from state and federal sources, West Sacramento hopes to take on the ambitious project of improving a levee system now believed to be more vulnerable than was realized before Hurricane Katrina prompted new examination.

The city previously hoped to court a "400 year" level of protection. That level represents only a 1-in-400 chance of a major flood in any given year. But Chow said that the Federal Emergency Management Agency, or FEMA, now measures West Sacramento only as having "better than 100 year" protection. The downgrading happened despite levee maintenance and improvements.

"As we stated before, our levees are better than they've ever been," he emphasized. "We are seeking 200-year protection or better."

The city and two local reclamation districts have formed a flood protection agency that hopes to get a head-start on some preliminary work next summer – as the environmental studies for the bulk of the project are still being finalized.

Chow was reluctant to guess when the whole project might be finished.

"That's really a moving target," he said. "We don't have a date now that's firm. There are variables such as state and federal funding. I'd be happy if we can finish in a decade."

School bond fails

West Sacramentans split almost evenly on $59 million 'Measure S'

Election results rolled in slowly last night, and by 11 p.m., only a stalwart group remained at a 'Yes on Measure S' campaign party on Lighthouse Drive. What they saw couldn't have made them happy:

With 83 percent of the votes tallied, West Sacramento had favored the school bond by a scant 50.8 percent to 49.2 percent margin. It wasn't enough: the ballot measure needed 55 percent voter approval to pass.

The Yolo County elections office reported 1,956 'yes' votes, and 1,892 'no' votes as of 11 p.m. Only three of 17 precincts remained to report, making a come-from-behind victory for Measure S very unlikely.

Proponents spent over $100,000 on the pro-bond campaign, facing a group of adversaries who did not plan to spend more than $1,000.

The bond would have paid for district-wide campus improvements and would have paid to convert local elementary schools to "kindergarten through eighth grade elementary schools. Washington Unified School District will now be forced to rethink that strategy.

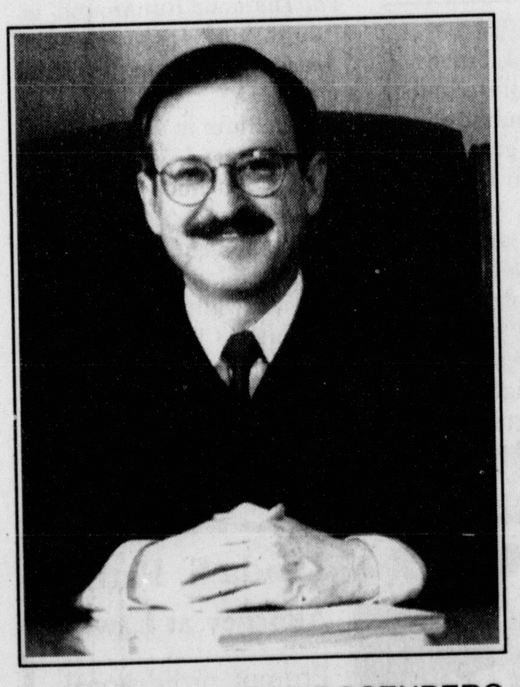

WAITING FOR THE RETURNS at the 'Yes on S' party: Retired West Sacramento City Manager Joe Goeden; Wes Beers, city councilman and bond campaign chairman; businessman Chris Bradford and businessman Dan Ramos.

Meanwhile, West Sacramento resident Stuart 'Stu' Greenfeld headed for victory in a race for the District 1 seat on the Yolo County School Board. Greenfeld is a retired former superintendent at Washington Unified School District in West Sacramento. He defeated incumbent Victor J. James, by a 58.3 percent to 41.7 percent margin.

New presiding judges

HONORABLE DAVID ROSENBERG
Presiding Judge
Yolo Superior Court

HONORABLE KATHLEEN WHITE
Assistant Presiding Judge
Yolo Superior Court

The bench of the Yolo County Superior Court on October 26 selected Judge David Rosenberg as its next presiding judge, and Judge Kathleen White as Assistant Presiding Judge.

Rosenberg, appointed to the bench in 2003, is a past county supervisor and Davis city councilman and mayor. He noted among the challeges facing the court, "the retirement of a majority of our bench, the entry and inclusion of new judges, and the critical need for a new courthouse. We will meet those challenges as we continue to meet the public's need for efficient and fair justice."

Rosenberg will appoint Judge Stephen L. Mock to coordinate the criminal division, and Judge White to coordinate the civil division.

White was appointed to the bench in April, 2003. She practiced law in Los Angeles and Yolo County before beginning service to Yolo County in 1997 as General Counsel and Court Executive Officer.

'Join the bond oversight committee': school district gets a head start

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The election at which West Sacramento voters would say "yea" or "nay" to a new $59 million school bond was still about a week away last week, when many residents received in their mailbox a two-color brochure calling itself an "application" to join the "citizen's oversight committee" for Measure S.

The application came from Washington Unified School District. It contained a form to fill out, as well as an invitation from school superintendent Steve Lawrence inviting the recipient to think about joining the oversight committee. It also explained what the bond would pay for and what the oversight committee's role might be.

But why mail out an application to join the bond oversight committee without first knowing whether Measure S would be approved?

The school district isn't permitted to spend money on actual campaigning – wasn't this brochure really a publicly-funded campaign piece?

"It was informational," answered Lawrence. "Anything we did, we ran by our lawyers. . . If you look, nowhere does it have a position on the school bond."

Lawrence told the News-Ledger that the piece cost the district $4,900 to print and mail (expenditures over $5,000 must first go through the school board for approval). He said that the application was sent to a database of "registered voters."

"I have talked to other superintendents who had done this prior," he added. "It's not a campaign piece, it's an informational piece."

He added that, once voters approve the bond and the county certifies the election, the district is required to set up an "oversight committee" within 60 days – so getting the mailer out last week could be helpful in meeting that deadline.

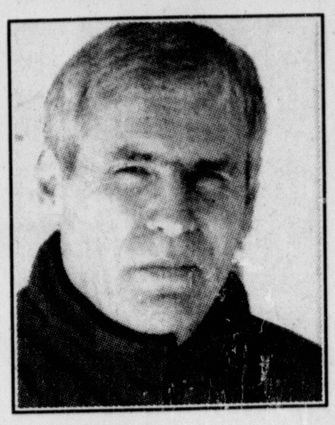

CORRECTION

An article in last week's News-Ledger listed two different ages for a Julian Drive resident killed after being hit by a train early morning October 14 near Sacramento Avenue and 8th Street.

The man was identified by police as Jonathan Edward Schachman, age 35.

It's all just a matter of perspective

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Note: With another Veterans Day just around the corner, I am reminded of a very good soldier (and an even better philosopher) I knew many years ago in Vietnam, and the following column is my recollection of a couple of conversations we once had:

One of the most interesting characters I met while I was in Vietnam was a middle-aged staff sergeant we all called Jimbo. He was a huge man, with a flaming red moustache and a completely bald head. He absolutely loved 'soldiering', as he called it, and had joined the Army when he was a teenager. It seemed like he had been everywhere and seen everything. He was also the platoon philosopher and had an uncanny knack for being able to put every problem known to man into what he believed was the proper perspective. For instance, in the middle of a terrifying firefight, he once crawled up to me and calmly whispered, "Fisher, dying is no big deal, absolutely anyone can do it."

Jimbo believed that "Everything is perspective and perspective is everything", and he used to drive me crazy with statistic after statistic (most of which I'm sure he made up) which he would use to support his most cherished theory, that "None of us have the foggiest notion just how good we really have it."

"Do you know what it means to be born in America?" he once asked me.

I obliged by shaking my head, 'no'.

"Just to be born in America," explained Jimbo, "means that you start off your life, economically speaking, in the top five percent of all the people of this earth. Now you just think about that for a minute, Fisher." I did. "And if you're born into a regular family, like me and you were, just a middle-class family, then that puts you in the top two and one-half percent of all the people in the entire world!"

"How do you figure that, Jimbo?"

"Well, just look at how these people here in Vietnam live. And things are no better in most other places in the world. Look at Africa, and India, and China, you name it. The majority of the people in this world can't even come up with a decent meal for their kids to eat most days." He started to play nervously with his moustache, as he always did when he was feeling genuine sadness for those less fortunate than himself.

"You gotta stop carrying the weight of the whole world on your shoulders all the time, Jimbo," I suggested.

"It's just that it drives me crazy to hear all the bellyaching that goes on around here. And it's just as bad back in the world. People really need to start figuring out just how good they got it. We're living in the best times that ever were. We got more books than any one man could ever read, medicines that keep us alive forever, and we're free to do as we damn-well please."

Jimbo was the only soldier I ever met who could stand in the middle of a putrid-smelling rice paddy in Vietnam (as we all did from time to time), admire the scenery, and say with conviction, "It just don't get any prettier than this!"

One evening, just a few days before Jimbo was scheduled to rotate back to the States, I decided to stop by his hootch to thank him for all the great advice he had given since we had met.

"I'm really going to miss you, Jimbo," I said. "We'll definitely have to stay in touch."

"Fisher," he said, "I've been in the Army for more years than I care to count, met thousands of guys, and never stayed in touch with any of them, so if I was you, I wouldn't be expecting any letters." I returned his warm smile. "But I tell you what I will do, though. I'll pass along the secret to staying sane in an insane world."

By then I had come to have great respect for Jimbo's way of looking at the world and I sat down on the foot of his bunk and listened carefully.

"You live in California, right?" he asked me.

"That's right -- in a little place called West Sacramento."

"Well, then that makes you one of the lucky ones, cause the ocean is right there next to you."

"The ocean?"

"Fisher, when nothing seems to make any sense, you just hop in a car and head for the ocean. Then sit yourself down on the warm sand and watch the ol' sun go down. That very same sun has been going down ever since time began, and those very same waves have been rolling in and out for just as long. And that sun is going to keep on going down, and those waves are going to keep on rolling in and out, long after you and me and all our puny little problems are long gone and forgotten about." He sat down beside me on the bunk and put his thick, muscular arm around my shoulder. "So you see," he concluded, "what people are always forgetting is that us human beings, and all the stupid things we worry about, just aren't all that important in the overall scheme of things."

"It's all just a matter of perspective, right, Jimbo?" I asked with a smile, quoting his favorite saying.

"You got it, Fisher!"

Florence Van Baaren

Florence Christine (Marston) Van Baaren, a resident of Broderick for 57 years, passed away in the presence of family on October 20, 2007 after a brief struggle with ovarian cancer. She was born in Sacramento on September 13, 1930 and was a 1949 graduate of C.K. McClatchy High School. She moved to Broderick in 1950 where she raised her children and remained for the rest of her life. Her Norwegian immigrant grandfather, John Adolph Johnson, owned a shipyard in Pittsburg, California, and built many of the early dredgers that worked up and down the Sacramento River. Her father, Charles Marston, was a carpenter who built many homes around Sacramento during the 1930s and 1940s. She came from a close-knit family and was very proud of her Norwegian heritage.

Mrs. Van Baaren is survived by her husband of 57 years, Robert Van Baaren; her daughter, Christine (Paul) Crawford of Placerville; her son, Michael (Kathleen) Van Baaren of West Sacramento; her nephew, Tod (Shelley) Marston of El Dorado Hills; her sister-in-law, Marian Beale of West Sacramento; and many Johnson cousins. She was preceded in death by her parents, Charles and Lottie (Johnson) Marston; her brother, Charles Richard Marston; and sister-in-law, Winona Cole. Services were held on October 25, 2007, with private interment at East Lawn Memorial Park in Sacramento.

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

By Richard Novoa

The NFL season is at the midway point with only one undefeated team remaining and some exciting NFL records that were broke. But for Northern California fans, it's been nothing but broken football hearts.

Yes, Brett Favre broke Marino's touchdown record and rookie Adrian Peterson rushed for 296 yards in one game but let's face it – the Niners and Raiders are awful!

Both bay area teams are playing poorly with the 49ers (2-6) scoring only 104 points in eight games while the Raiders (2-6) offense, which has improved, still manages to give away their games with penalties and turnovers in the final quarter.

The 49ers offense is the worst in the NFL and won't improve until they replace their offensive coordinator and hire a few new offensive linemen. The 49ers lost two more linemen this week so the future looks a little bleak for quarterback Alex Smith.

The season could get worst for Smith, who threw for a meager 149 yards last week and has surpassed the 200-yard barrier only once this season and has yet to throw for 300 yards. It's pretty sad that the 49ers MVP player this season is their punter, Andy Lee.

The Raiders on the other side of the bay are also struggling with their quarterback situation. The big question is which quarterback do you start? The Silver and Black have rotated McCown and Culpepper behind the center but it's time to give their million-dollar man JaMarcus Russell the ball. If you're going to lose, you might as well let the kids play!

Watching these two teams play has been very painful but the Niners and Raiders can still turn around their season and salvage some respect for themselves and their loyal fans. The 49ers still have to play Seattle on Monday but their next home game is against the last place Rams followed by games at Arizona and Carolina, then host Minnesota, Cincinnati, Tampa Bay and finish on the road in Cleveland.

The Raiders finish their season hosting Da Bears Sunday then travel to Minnesota and Kansas City before Green Bay comes to Oakland. The Raiders final three games are tough with the Colts, Jags and Chargers on the menu.

NFL Week 10

The New England Patriots are 9-0 and have a good chance of going undefeated, a feat that hasn't been accomplished since the 1972 Miami Dolphins. The Pats have been punishing opposing teams by running up the scores since they got busted cheating but these guys are playing great football on both sides of the ball.

The surprise teams in the NFC have been the Detroit Lions (6-2) and Green Bay Packers (7-1) while in the AFC the Cleveland Browns (5-3) and Tennessee Titans (6-2) are working on playoff spots.

This week the Niners will try not to embarrass themselves on the Monday night game of the week against Seattle while the Raiders entertain Da Bears at home (1:15 p.m.). The game maybe televised but only because the Chicago Bears fans will be buying tickets.

Aztec's Picks

The dog 'Aztec' was 3-2 again last week losing only the Chargers game in the NFL games but his Georgia Bulldogs actually won their game but failed to cover the spread. This week his "College Lick of the Week" is USC (-3 ½) at Cal and in the NFL, Aztec is pawing at the Bears (-3) at Oakland while the Saints (-10) will keep marching on against the hapless Rams and the Dolphins (+3) will swim to their first win. On Monday night the 49ers might be able to score a few points against the Seahawks (-10 ½) to cover.

Kings Korner

The Kings (0-3) return to the friendly confines of the Arco Arena on Tuesday night to host the Seattle Sonics and then Lebron James and his Cleveland Cavs will come to town on Friday night (7:30) for a big ESPN game.

Coach Theus has his work cut out for him in his first Kings home stand. The Kings are without the services of Ron Artest, Mike Bibby and rookie center Spencer Hawes and center, Brad Miller is playing with a bad back.

The Kings should win on their home opener against Seattle but Friday's game against the Cavs will be a tough one to win. The Kings will host Minnesota on Saturday night (7 p.m.) before they travel to Utah on Monday (6 p.m.-CSN).

Korner Kicks

The San Jose Earthquakes announced that their expansion franchise would be returning to the Major League Soccer starting in 2008. The Quakes signed an agreement with Santa Clara University to play their 2008/09 home games at their newly renovated Buck Shaw 17,000 seat Stadium. The Quakes have an option for the 2010 season while they continue their search for new stadium in the San Jose area.

San Jose also hired coach FrankYallop away from the Los Angeles Galaxy for a third round MLS draft pick. If you're interested in tickets call 408-556-7700 or go online at sjearthquakes.com.

Raider football approaches final game of season

The River City Raiders visited the Rio Linda Knights last Friday night. The varsity came away with a 41 to 14 loss. The Raider J.V also dropped the earlier game to the Knight J.V Squad.

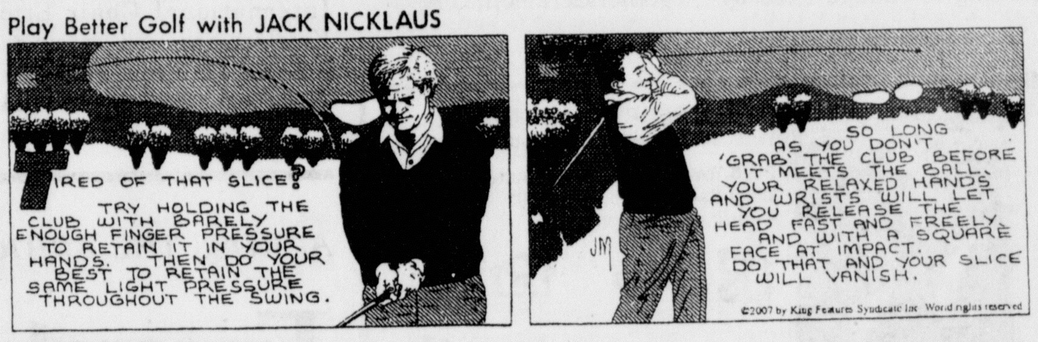

Gregory "GT" Turner, had another highlight evening, carrying the ball for the Raiders 40 times for 187 yards on the night and also returning 4 kickoffs for a total of 147 yards.

With their playoff hopes dashed, the Raiders will play their final game of this 2007 season Friday night at River City.

The RCHS booster club invites you to come out and support your River City Raider's football team. With a victory Friday night they can end with a winning season of 6 win and 4 losses.

If you are interested in joining this Booster club to support the River City Raider's athletic teams please see any of the hard working members at the snack bar on Friday night.

Pitch in to help rehab West Sac Senior Center

"Rebuilding Together Sacramento," a local non-profit organization, is looking for volunteers to help improve the West Sacramento Senior Center on Friday, November 30. A few persons with knowledge of electrical or plumbing repairs are needed, however the majority of volunteers do not need any special skills. Just a willingness to help out. Volunteers are needed to help paint the interior of the facility, install automatic doors for wheelchair access, replace kitchen appliances and for general clean up.

The Sacramento affiliate of Rebuilding Together is working to change lives by helping people live independently in comfort and safety. Rebuilding Together's home safety modification program has recently expanded into Yolo County. Hundreds of seniors fall in their home each year. Rebuilding Together can help seniors be safer in their homes through the installation of grab bars, hand rails, night lights and smoke detectors.

Call Rebuilding Together at 916-455-1880, extension 0, for more information on safety modifications or to volunteer. More information on Rebuilding Together is available at www.rebuilding-togethersacramento.org.

Help Rotary help others

From the West Sacramento Rotary Club

The West Sacramento Rotary Club is growing, and along with its growth comes an increase in its goals for giving to the local community and internationally. The recent Nicaragua Wheelchair Project was a big success, raising $11,000 that will be matched by Rotary International's Wheelchair Foundation for a total of $22,000 worth of wheelchairs (approximately 200 wheelchairs) for the underprivileged in Nicaragua. Arrangements are being made by the club to deliver them, with club members picking up their own costs.

Another International Project being spearheaded by International Chair Eric Ketelsen has been known as for the past few years as "Shoeboxes for Soldiers" and all West Sacramentans are asked to get involved. Pick up one or more "Flat Rate Boxes" at the Post Office and fill it with desired goods for our soldiers serving in the Middle East and you will help brighten a soldier's life this holiday season. Keeping spirits high is so important for our men and women serving our country, and we've received so many letters letting us know that these boxes filled with "goodies" become a precious life line to home and a great mood and morale booster. Desired items include: non-perishable food items (beef jerky, hard candies, homemade cookies, granola bars, Payday Energy Bars, canned fruit or ravioli in pop-top cans), drinks (instant coffee, powdered drinks, Gatorade), reading materials, CDs and DVDs, toiletries such as razors, baby powder and baby wipes, green or black crew socks, and cards or notes of encouragement, etc. Please deliver boxes, along with a check for $9 to cover shipping/handling, to the West Sacramento Chamber at 1414 Merkley Ave, suite 1.

Closer to home, West Sac Rotarians, led by Club President Drew Gidlof, have made an ambitious commitment to provide $18,000 in scholarships to local high school seniors. The Club earlier this year donated 25 computers to Computers 4 Kids, a local collaboration in partnership with the West Sacramento Chamber, Collings Teen Center, Washington School District and others. CalSTRS has also recently committed to donating up to 75 additional computers, and the Rotary Club will be organizing the donation and orientation of children and family members for their newly refurbished computers.

Another Rotary initiative that's a "pet project" of Gidlof to help local disabled persons in need, is raising $10,000 for a local Companion Guide Dog Program, and he recently reported the Club is a quarter of the way toward reaching that goal.

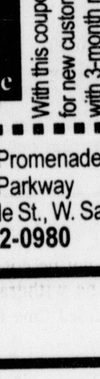

The Family Thanksgiving Project is also underway, and local Grocery Outlet and Raley's locations have provided bags with lists of food items to be placed in them for local families. The club plans to have turkey dinners provided to at least 50 families in need for Thanksgiving.

If you would like to support any of these charitable efforts or are interested in learning more, check out the West Sacramento Rotary website at www.westsacrotary.com. For additional information on the "Shoeboxes for Soldiers" program, email Eric Ketelsen at ketlers@gmail.com.

VETERANS ★ POST ★

by Freddy Groves

Is it PTSD ... or TBI?

Post Traumatic Stress Disorder and Traumatic Brain Injury have a number of symptoms in common. Unfortunately, this causes far too many misdiagnoses in veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan, with the majority being misdiagnosed with only PTSD when they have TBI as well — or the reverse.

Brain cells, rattled and jarred in a seemingly minor nearby blast, easily can be injured, and it only takes proximity to one explosion to cause a concussion. One in five are returning from Iraq and Afghanistan with traumatic brain injury, and most don't even know it. Now called the signature injury of the war, TBI can be invisible, with not a scratch to be seen.

Some of the overlapping symptoms of TBI and PTDS are irritability, depression, memory problems, impaired judgment, confusion, difficulty concentrating, headaches and frustration with multi-tasking.

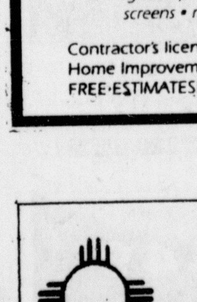

A patient with TBI might become irritable and frustrated at his lack of memory. Misdiagnosis comes into play when doctors focus on the irritation and frustration, a symptom of PTSD. Correct diagnosis is key, however, because the treatments for both problems are different.

An additional problem is that the full extent of TBI doesn't show up immediately, often masking PTSD until the TBI is healed.

Second and third deployments add to the problem because brain damage is accumulative. Most get no care initially because it isn't found. If not treated, the damage can be irreversible.

VA facilities will start using a TBI screening tool that asks questions about symptoms and being near a blast, with the hope of diagnosing and treating more cases that might have gone unnoticed.

For more information on brain injury, go to American Veterans with Brain Injury at www.avbi.org, where you'll find peer advocates, information chat, personal stories and more.

'Krispy' the hard-luck cat makes it to 2

From Michele Wallace
Public Affairs Officer
Yolo County Sheriff's Department

The Yolo County Animal Services section of the Yolo County Sheriff's Department is recognizing a special birthday. Krispy the cat turns two.

As a baby, the kitten was acquired by the County Animal Services on January 19, 2006. He was underweight, very dirty, and looked like a little blob of grey fur curled up in the shrubs in front of the shelter. Upon examination Animal Care Technician (A.C.T.) Swain noticed that the little kitten had neurological deficits; his ears, whiskers and his facial hair were burned. With loving care, A.C.T. Swain took the kitten home, named him Krispy, and fostered him.

At 10:00 p.m. he started having seizures. With care and various medications, after two long days and nights the seizures stopped. With continued care and provisions for the next few months, the Yolo County Animal Services team were worried that little Krispy was not doing well. When all seemed bleak the University of California at Davis accepted him for a neurological exam. They suspected a Porto systemic shunt. Blood work confirmed the diagnosis.

Although everybody was happy to know what was causing his problems, Krispy's medical problems were very serious and required major surgery. He had a congenital liver disease. The U.C. Davis veterinarians donated their services and performed the surgery. Krispy made it through.

After several days of hospitalization he was returned to the shelter to finish recuperating. As time went on he grew into the huge, six pound cat that he is today. He is a very happy and totally functional cat. Now he spends his days playing with his kitty friends, toys, and gazing out the window of his adopted home.

Chief Officer Vicky Fletcher and her staff at the Yolo County Animal Services do a wonderful job caring for the many cats, dogs, and other animals at the shelter. You are encouraged to stop by any Monday through Friday, 10 am. – 1 p.m; 2 p.m. – 6 p.m; or Saturday between 10 a.m. – 1 p.m. or 2 p.m. – 4 p.m. to take a walk through the area and find an appropriate pet for you. The staff would be happy to provide you with the guidelines for adoption and fee information.

If you would like to offer support for their services, you can adopt a brick or send a monetary donation to: Yolo County Animal Services, 2640 East Gibson Road, Woodland, CA, 95776. For more information on donations or adoptions contact Animal Services at 530-668-5287.

Deputies find evasive couple

On Wednesday October 24, at about noon, a Yolo County Deputy on patrol saw John Jones, 30 and his wife Kathleen Jones, 27, both of Woodland, driving near the Woodland Watts airport.

The Yolo County Sheriff's Department reports that the deputy attempted to pull the vehicle over, as John Jones was wanted for a parole violation, and was listed as "armed and dangerous." The couple failed to stop and attempted to evade the deputy. The suspect sped away and there began a high speed pursuit which ended when the suspect's vehicle crashed in the gravel pits near Cache Creek.

After running into a ditch, the two suspects fled on foot, reports the sheriff's department. According to spokesperson Michele Wallace:

A perimeter was set up, and an extensive search was conducted by Sheriff's Deputies, two CHP air units, and CHP and Woodland Police K-9 units. They were unable to locate the suspects.

Detectives from the Sheriff's Investigations Section began investigating the incident attempting to locate the suspects. On October 30, 2007, at approximately 12:27 p.m. hours after an extensive investigation, Detectives located and arrested the suspect, John Jones along with Barrett Shockey 25, of Sacramento. They were located near the intersection of Lincoln and Walnut streets in Woodland. John Jones was arrested for being a parolee at large and for felony evading arrest. Barrett Shockey was arrested for parole violation. Additional charges are still pending.

Also on Tuesday, at about 1 p.m., Kathleen Jones was located and arrested by investigators near Elm and Main streets in Woodland. She was arrested for resisting, delaying, and obstructing a peace officer. Other charges are still pending. The case is still under investigation.

Sheriff Prieto said, "I'm very proud of our investigators. They did an outstanding job in apprehending these suspects. Our investigators truly provide 'Service Without Limitations'."

tion of "Wine and Grapes". St. Nicholas used oil for her "Tree".

Ann Bissett Clark has a large and strong acrylic painting to emphasize the grandeur of "Dawn in the Sierra". "The Pear" by contrast is a small, simplified depiction of a pear painted with an acrylic pallet of soft, subtle colors by June Montelongo.

JoJo Gillies used the sparkle of watercolor for "Orchid" to better show the vibrant color of the flower. She painted "Nature's Glow" in watercolor as a semi-abstract of the changing light of the sky as the sun appears at dawn.

Betty Fairbairn Sokolich is another artist who prefers the looseness of water with a pigment to express her love of nature. "Tree of Love" painted by Canyon Lake in Arizona shows a tree seeming to hold the lake in its love. "Blue Heaven" is also of water.

Roger Rehm holds on to the "POP" images he enjoys drawing as a way to incorporate his unique vision of things and ideas usually in black and white with words integrated into the design.

Fascinating use of a digital camera and a computer are the tools Wes Sherlock uses for his creations. The two examples in the exhibit represent the variety possible with this new art technique. "A Study of Light and Shadows" is a quiet, contemplative work while "Tree" is just a tree standing aline in its landscape.

A reception at the library for the artists will be held on December 8th from 4-5 p.m. immediately following the WSAG exhibit for 2nd Saturday to be held at the Nugget Market from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The public is welcome to see both the exhibits of the active members of the Guild.

Art exhibits are sponsored by the West Sacramento Friends of the Library.

The Sacramento River registered twenty-two feet, eleven inches, U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday. This was a raise of fourteen feet, six inches since an even date of last week and is out of the ordinary for the month of April. Although storms similar to the ones that have just passed over the state have occurred previously, there was never a downpour more welcome than that which came since last Friday. Nearly five inches of rain fell since the last issue of the Independent and crops that were beginning to look bad have picked up so well that farmers are rejoicing as they seldom rejoice in the history of California. A remarkable feature of the storms of the last week is that even now after nearly five inches of rain have fallen very little water remains on the surface of the ground. This is particularly true in the West Sacramento District and in the Holland District where the ground absorbs moisture as it falls. This moisture is retained throughout the spring and summer especially on land that has been planted to grain. The grain is several inches above the ground and shades the moisture from the heat of the sun thus preserving it to give nutriment and strength and growth to grain crops. Needless to say that vegetables of all kinds have been greatly benefitted. Spinach and asparagus are those particularly blessed and at the present time it looks as if the spinach crop of this district would exceed anything ever grown before. Lettuce, onions, carrots, turnips and beets for household purposes are growing in an unprecedented way so that the cost of living will not be so great during the coming summer. The month of March gave all farmers the opportunity of their lives to plant every crop imaginable. There was no rain but anticipations were that some light falls would come on in the early part of April. These crops are particularly blessed because the storms just passed over have supplied a plentiful supply of moisture to give new crops a wonderful start and to help crops that had been planted several weeks ago. In all nearly five inches of rain fell since the first of April, raising the seasonal rainfall above the normal.

At the home of Mrs. F. R. Atkinson in West Sacramento her sister and brother-in-law, S. G. Baker of Newton Falls, Ohio, are visiting to remain for a week or two. They will visit San Francisco, Los Angeles and other coast points before returning to their home in Ohio. It is possible that they may return to make a home in California early next fall.

Mrs. Carl Lindquist went to Oakland last Wednesday with her husband to remain a few days at the Bay on a short vacation. She is expected home Saturday.

At the West Side Auto Camp a repair headquarters has been established by the proprietors, McNally and Partridge. This department is under the charge of Oscar Anderson, who is reported to be an excellent mechanic and who knows the automobile busines to a finish.

It was a joke even though it resulted fatally. Last Wednesday night at the Auto Exchange Camp operated by J. N. Carroll, an automobile with a first class set of tires had been standing all day in the mud with water covering the rims and possibly leaking into the tubes. A careful man is Carroll and noting the damage being done to the tires he told his partner, "Slim" to block up the car, keeping the tires out of the water. Carroll would not be so careful were it not that the tires were cords of first class quality and in a fine state of preservation, having been driven only a few miles. The work completed "Slim" and Carroll retired to the bunkhouse. They closed the gates to the camp before retiring and they placed their loaded muskets in position at the window of their little home. Not a sound disturbed their slumbers during the night. Early Thursday morning they arose to find that the jacked up automobile with the good tires had been robbed. Every tire on the car had been stolen during the night and the rims were taken along also. Unconsciously, they had prepared the way for some sneak thief to make a quick getaway with four good tires by blocking up the car but Carroll is cheerful and "Slim" is glum over the occurrence. They have vowed that from now on they will never again go to the trouble of helping a thief by jacking up a car. In fact, they invite the burglar to return and take the spare worn-out tire that he left on the rear end of the automobile.

Word has been received in Washington that Joe Pereira is now engaged in the conduct of the municipal auto camp at Yreka, Siskiyou County. A year ago Pereira was in charge of the West Sacramento Auto Camp but through misfortune lost the business and it is now in the possession of Pearson Bros.

H. R. Isaacs and his brother, Walter, were arrested at Roseville last Monday on a charge of violation of the fish and game laws by Warden W. J. Green. They were found near Babel Slough north of Clarksburg in possession of twenty-nine sun perch and as the season for this fish does not open until May 1st they were placed under arrest by Warden Green. Appearing in Judge Barry's Court last Wednesday they pleaded guilty and were each fined $25.00, which they paid immediately.

A warrant has been sworn out in Judge Barry's court against M. E. Huck of Carly Acres by Roscoe Phelps whose home is located in Extension No. 2 of Riverbank. It appears that

CONLEY DEATH IS CAUSED BY STROKE OF PARALYSIS

Last Wednesday C. C. Conley, a resident of Washington for several years past, died suddenly at his home near Fourth and Mary streets following a stroke of paralysis.

He had not been sick or did not complain to any extent prior to his death. While attending to his regular duties around his home he was overtaken and was prostrated, death following in a very short time.

Conley had been an employe of the Southern Pacific Company for several years. About a year ago he was pensioned after having served as watchman at the Third Street crossing to the bridge for over two years.

Since receiving a pension he devoted his time and attention to building some cottages at the corner of Fourth and Mary Streets, one of which he occupied at the time of his death.

Yesterday the Independent was unable to locate any relatives of Mr. Conley but it is believed that he had a son and a daughter who have taken charge of his affairs and will look after funeral arrangements on their arrival in Washington. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

HART GETS AWAY WITH SMALL AMOUNT BY CHECKS

Jack Hart, alias W. H. Hart, managed to get away with small amounts from local merchants last week and his defalcations have been reported to Constable Wilson and Sheriff Monroe.

So far as is known, the total amount of his shortage is about $62.

Of this a check given to Mrs. Roberts in the West Side Grocery Camp for $12.00 was returned marked "No funds." Another check given to George Beale for $25.00 was similarly marked and it is understood that another check handed a Chinaman for $25.00 was marked "No funds."

All three checks were drawn on the California National Bank.

The check given to Roberts was turned over on March 25th but was not returned by the bank until April 1st.

Hart was known in the neighborhood of the Kline slaughter house where he was employed and was believed to be well able to meet his obligations.

Following the discovery that his checks were useless he disappeared from this section and may now be operating in some other locality.

He had been a resident of Washington for several months.

PETROLEUM PLANT AT WOODLAND TO BE COMPLETED APRIL 26

Contract has been let by the General Petroleum Corporation for its distributing plant at Woodland to Lozier and Carr of San Jose and the specification calls for completion of the plant on April 26th.

This information was received at the general headquarters of the corporation yesterday in Westgate.

The plant will consist of a tank, pump house, loading rack, a garage with two stalls and a fence to surround the plant.

The intention of the Petroleum corporation is to make this plant a distributing point for all business on the west side of the valley as far north as Red Bluff and as far east as Marysville and points in the Sutter Basin.

The plant will also supply all sections of Yolo County west of Woodland and north to Colusa and Glenn Counties.

LEAR, RICKARD AND M'GREGOR ELECTED FIRE COMMISSIONERS FOR WASHINGTON

At the electon of fire commissioners held in the town hall last Monday, April 5th, eighteen voters of the district took advantage of the opportunity to cast a ballot for the three candidates, J. S. Lear, S. T. Rickard and P. McGregor.

Each of the candidates received eighteen votes.

Judge Barry, who had been a fire commissioner during the past year, refused to be a candidate again owing to pressure of business.

The officers of election were T. Dupzyk, L. A. Peak and H. Davis.

PERMISSION GRANTED BY SUPERVISORS FOR GAS MAINS

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors held in Woodland April 5th permission was granted to the Pacific Gas and Electric Company to install gas mains in Riverbank and Washington.

Washington is already supplied with mains but extensions are now requested for other sections of the town.

In the Riverbank district 159 householders have signed applications to the company for a supply of gas. To all homes where signatures were se-

IMPROVEMENT CLUB TO MEET TO-NIGHT AT WESTGATE

The meeting of the West Sacramento Improvement Association scheduled to take place on April 2nd, the first Friday of the month, was postponed by order of the trustees and officers because Friday, April 2nd, was Good Friday.

The postponed meeting will take place this evening at West Sacramento headquarters instead and a general good time is anticipated by members of the association.

The farmers of the district who are members of the club and all home owners in the district live in the anticipation of these monthly meetings expecting that natural improvement and mutual benefit will be reaped from such meetings.

Nearly every resident of the district is a member of the association and none of them are so bashful as to refrain from taking a hand in the discussions that take place.

A feature of this evening's entertainment will be a basket lunch provided by the ladies of the district for which the men will bid in an auction to be conducted by one of the members of the association. The bids made for any particular basket will give to the bidder and the lady who puts up the lunch the privilege of eating together and sharing with their friends.

PERMIT FOR BUS LINE GRANTED FOR WASHINGON AND WESTGATE

At the meeting of the State Railroad Commission held in San Francisco last Monday the permit asked by J. and Victoria Misetich for a bus line to operate between Sacramento, Washington and Westgate, was granted.

This permit has been greatly desired by the residents of the district for many moons because they believe that until this bus service is furnished the growth of the districts at this side of the river will be greatly retarded.

One of the principal reasons that the North Sacramento District grew as rapidly as it did was that a bus service was established there when only a few homes had been built. This bus service materially helped to promote the interests of the district.

There is no doubt that a bus service is greatly needed at this side of the river, especially since the street car service was suspended between Sacramento and Westgate.

While nearly all homes of the district are supplied with automobiles there remains the fact that when the wage earner goes to his work in the morning he is forced to use the family car, leaving other members of the family without means of transportation.

While neighbors have been very kind in taking care of those who are forced to walk, there yet remains the fact that each and every resident of the district would rather not be dependent on their neighbors and would take advantage of a bus service when it is established.

It is the intention of the Misetiches to establish the bus immediately on receipt of the permit to be issued by the Railroad Commission.

FILLING GRADE FOR ROAD TO M STREET BRIDGE GOES SLOWLY

It seems dubious at the present writing that the method of filling the grade leading to the M Street bridge can be successful.

During three weeks the dredger Neptune has been idling at the location and has been throwing up buckets of sand as the means of filling the roadway.

The theoretical idea was a good one but for some reason or another it seemed to fail in practice.

Great quantities of water pumped into the filling trough would not move the sand westward to the location where it was needed and now it is evident that all the sand must be deposited near the end of the bridge to be scraped later on to fill the excavation on which the road will subsequently be built.

There is no fault to be found with the work of the dredger nor is there fault to be found with the efforts of the contractor. The only trouble seems to be that the theory would not work out practically.

Delay in the construction of the roadway may result but there is time yet to experiment on this job. Ample time remains before the contract limit will expire.

The evening was spent in dancing

LARGE DISTILLING PLANT FOUND NEAR RIVER IS DESTROYED

One of the most successful raids, from the point of the breaking up of the bootleg traffic in this county, was conducted Saturday when Sheriff J. W. Monroe, accompanied by A. R. Shurtliff, Federal prohobition officer in Sacramento, swept down upon a bootlegging manufactory on the Sacramento river two miles below Westgate and confiscated huge quantities of materials.

Monroe stated this afternoon that when the party arrived on the scene, which was located on the Farriss Estate near Westgate, not a person was in sight but that the fire in the still was found burning and other indications pointed to the fact that the operators of the establishment had left but a few minutes before.

The pary seized four 500 gallon tanks, one 100 gallon tank, a still with the capacity of 75 gallons and huge quantities of sugar and other materials used in the distilling of liquor.

One thousand gallons of corn mash found on the place was destroyed and everything else in sight done away with, assuring the officers that there would be no more "moonshine" manufactured there for some time.

The estate, it is understood, was leased to a man named Charlie Ross, but as to who the actual operators of the still were is not known. Monroe stated that the parties must have received wind of the raid late, for evidences of a hurried retreat were manifest.

All the confiscated property was taken to Woodland when Monroe returned.

ROAD TO WEST SACRAMENTO GREATLY IMPROVED

Prior to the storm of last Friday and Saturday a good deal of improvement was made to the roadway leading from the M Street bridge to West Sacramento by filling chuck holes and otherwise improving the road.

Another great necessity was the improvement of the grade leading from that road to the state highway in West Sacramento and crossing the embankment of the San Francisco-Sacramento Short Line.

This grade was leveled and the chuck holes filled with rock.

The work was done by the road gang in the employ of the county under the instruction of Supervisor Buckingham.

Near West Sacramento headquarters there yet remains a few dangerous chuck holes that need filling. On abatement of the storm these improvements will be made.

AGED RESIDENT OF WASHINGTON CALLED BY DEATH

Austen Henry Wilson, a resident of Washington during the past 25 years, died at his home on Fourth street yesterday (Thursday), April 8th, about 2 P. M.

Sick during the past two weeks, he succumbed to the grim reaper a victim of advancing years.

His end was peaceful and many members of his family surrounded his bedside when the end came.

Several years ago Mr. Wilson retired from active service. Twenty-five years ago he came here from Illinois where he had been farming. Prior to that time he had farmed north of town. He was a member of the Christian church and of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Wilson was a man of great rectitude and stern integrity.

Besides his wife, Eunice, he leaves to mourn him a son, William K. Wilson of Colusa, Clarence J. Wilson of Lockford, Constable Frank R. Wilson of Washington and Mrs. W. K. Glassford of Washington.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made but interment will likely be in City Cemetery.

News-Ledger Editorial

'The ziggurat? It's sooooo 1990s'

The crane and skeleton have been part of West Sacramento's sunrise skyline for a few months now. Steel has been tacked to the building's frame a little at a time. Sometime recently – it's tough to say when – the new CalSTRS high-rise office tower seemed to go from "mostly air" to "mostly iron."

It became opaque enough to look more like a building than a spiderweb.

That CalSTRS tower is now the new dominant feature of the West Sacramento riverfront. On completion, it will be the tallest building not only in this city, but in the county.

At its foot is a shorter building we used to make a big fuss about. That would be the "ziggurat," the sand-colored, step-sided pyramid unique enough to have become an icon not only for West Sacramento, but for the Sacramento region. You have seen the ziggurat's image on the covers of phone books, in a tiled mosaic next to a J Street sidewalk in Sacramento, and in television advertisements. You've seen it on murals at the airport and as background for weather reports on local TV stations, and you've seen it (like its neighbor, the Tower Bridge) flashed onscreen during half-time reports of home games hosted by the Sacramento Kings.

The "ziggurat" was originally controversial. Plenty of folks – particularly in Old Sacramento – objected when it started to go up, taking over their viewscape to the west. It appears most people have gotten used to it and even grown fond of it.

One thing the ziggurat did do is signal that West Sacramento could compete with its big brother to the east: West Sacramento could attract a major corporate headquarters (the Money Store, builder of the pyramid). And, when the Money Store left town, the briefly-empty ziggurat helped West Sac show it could "win" a major state office tenant, specifically the Department of General Services.

This was in an era when the late Joe Serna, mayor of Sacramento, decreed that West Sacramento was the appropriate site just for warehouses. He and his city fought hard to keep anything more prestigious or more lucrative (stuff he regarded as the capital city's birthright) from leaking westward over the Sacramento River.

After the ziggurat came Raley Field. The baseball stadium provided another "surprise" West Sacramento victory in a hard-fought competition between Sacramento and little West Sacramento. After Raley Field, this young city's confidence went up higher than the peak of the ziggurat. Or the top of the River Cats' scoreboard.

The new CalSTRS tower – and other riverfront projects slated to come after – have taken their time in following these victories. But they are coming, and they will change the skyline of West Sacramento.

The ziggurat, so valuable to the city's ego in the '90s, will someday be just another nice West Sacramento high-rise.

Where were the kids?

Where were the children on Halloween?

Only a few children came to our home, which had lots of lights and decorations. It is sad to see the numbers of children who participate steadily decreasing. What is truly heartbreaking is that our neighborhood has its share of young children, but few showed up at our door.

My children really enjoyed taking part in the spirit of Halloween when they were young. It's too bad that scare tactics have parents keeping many children either at home or in "group activities."

Part of the excitement of trick-or-treating (other than the candy!) was touring your neighborhood and seeing the different decorations on display. Like the characters in the comic strip "Peanuts", the children are missing out on popcorn balls, candy apples, rice crispy squares, bags of money (usually pennies) and any other gift received after begging/threatening at the door, "Trick-or-treat!"

What is this world coming to when children can't be children?

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

CRITIC'S CORNER
By D.N.A Smith

"The Darjeeling Limited"

Running time: 91 minutes
MPAA rating: R

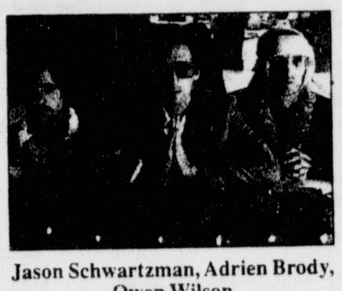

Usually when reviewing a film by Wes Anderson, critics spend a good 20 minutes looking up synonyms for "quirky." Not so with Anderson's latest film. When it comes to describing how I feel about "The Darjeeling Limited," I'il be rifling through the thesaurus for synonyms for "I don't care."

This story about three emotionally crippled brothers reuniting a year after their father's funeral wavers between mind-numbingly dull to outright insulting in its ham-fisted metaphors. To give you an example: The three brothers are carrying a lot of emotional baggage since their father's death. To represent that, Anderson has them schlepping around India with 11 pieces of their late father's luggage. Baggage. Get it?

And the moral of the story is that we all live our lives in tiny, self-absorbed compartments, while life passes us by.

In case you didn't understand the movie during the first 80 minutes, 'Anderson shows every character in the film in their own train compartment on an imaginary Darjeeling Limited, totally oblivious to the scenery passing them by.

Owen Wilson, Adrien Brody and Jason Schwartzman play the three brothers. For most of the film, Anderson has them framed in constricting 3-shots (another "compartmentalizing" visual metaphor). Brody does a good job with what little the script gives him to work with. Wilson and Schwartzman basically play the same characters you see them playing in their other films — only more sad.

Jason Schwartzman, Adrien Brody, Owen Wilson

Angelica Houston, thankfully, appears briefly to class-up the film and give it a jolt of energy. But other than that, "The Darjeeling Limited" is on a track to nowhere.

Q: Will the show "Lost" come back this fall or is it over for good? — Jessie G., Prince Edward Island, Canada

A: The producers of "Lost" have confirmed that the show will be coming back for a fourth season, which will air on ABC from February to May 2008. In fact, you can expect to be witness to the island mystery until the year 2010, with the conclusion of the series with the sixth, and final, season. Writers have the entire story arc planned through the final show, in which ABC Entertainment President Stephen McPherson announced that there will be a "highly anticipated and shocking finale. We felt that this was the only way to give 'Lost' a proper creative conclusion."

Q: I just saw "Gone Baby Gone" directed by Ben Affleck, starring his younger brother, Casey Affleck. When Casey spoke, it sounded like someone had stapled his tongue to the roof of his mouth. My question is, has he got a bad speech impediment or what? — Dan W., Cape Coral, Fla.

A: The critically acclaimed murder-mystery drama was set in the Afflecks' hometown of Boston, so Casey had to re-adopt the Bostonian accent that he shed when he made the A-list movie scene. Perhaps that pronounced accent is what caught your ear, because, as I recall from other movies I've seen Casey in, he usually speaks more clearly and less garbled. We'll just have to chalk this up to a character choice that did not resonate well with at least one viewer: you. However, I cannot say that it really bothered me, and I must admit that I am usually a stickler for those kinds of things.

Q: I have been awaiting the return of "Medium." It has been my favorite show for quite a long time. Has it been canceled? — Mary Kay, via e-mail

A: The popular parapsychology series starring my favorite Arquette sibling, Patricia, is slated to return to NBC on Jan. 20, 2008, where it will enjoy its new time slot of Sunday nights at 9. However, it could return early if one of NBC's new shows doesn't get picked up for a full season and the network needs a tried-and-true show to fill a vacant time slot.

Q: What happened to Cas, the contestant who came in second place on "America's Got Talent"? I thought he was great and was wondering what became of him — A Reader in Dover, Del.

Patricia Arquette

A: Cas Haley, a native of Arlington, Texas, performed the National Anthem and the halftime show with his band, Woodbelly, for the Dallas Cowboys on NFL opening day earlier this fall. He also played a string of shows in Branson, Mo., in October. He currently is working on his upcoming album and is close to releasing his first single, "Messy."

The Nine: Inside the Secret World of the Supreme Court
by Jeffrey Toobin
(Doubleday, $27.95)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

The verdict is in, and, simply put, this is one of the most intimate books ever written about the United States Supreme Court.

Jeffrey Toobin, senior legal analyst for CNN and a staff writer for The New Yorker, delves into the historical, political and personal inner workings of the Supreme Court and its justices. His highly readable new book presents vivid, personal portraits of the justices, the arduous confirmation processes and the eventual shift to the conservative right that Republicans have been pursuing for nearly three decades.

One of Toobin's most important sources was Sandra Day O'Connor, the justice who cast the deciding vote in Bush v. Gore that decided the 2000 presidential election. Even though she came to regret her vote, it was Justice David Souter who almost resigned from the high court following its decision, according to Toobin. Only after the urging of a handful of close friends did he decide to stay, but his attitude toward the court was never the same.

Based on exclusive interviews with Supreme Court justices and other intimates, "The Nine" is a breathtaking book. It examines the court from the Rehnquist years through the first full term of the Roberts Court, a term which ended with a series of blockbuster opinions issued this past spring.

Toobin offers a rare, personal look at how the individual style of each justice affects the way they wield their considerable powers, and that is one of the major strengths of the book. With control of the Supreme Court a crucial issue in the upcoming presidential elections, every American needs to better understand how the court operates and the huge role it will play in our near future.

Fave Foods OF THE FAMOUS
by Steven Austin

Stacy Cohen

Is it possible to enjoy the healthy lifestyle of a kosher billionaire, even if you are short a few zeroes in your checkbook ... and aren't even Jewish? According to lifestyle guru Stacy Cohen, the answer is a resounding yes! She is leading the charge to revamp the kosher lifestyle with contemporary, gourmet and healthy dishes.

Cohen is a world renowned philanthropist, fashion expert, actress, author and an avid supporter of the arts, who discovered a life-changing kosher lifestyle years ago and never looked back. She found that you can be healthier eating kosher while also enjoying gourmet and exotic foods. As an actress she has appeared on television series such as "Baywatch" and "Coach." Her movie credits include "Lethal Weapon 4," "The Rock" and "Happily Ever After."

Cohen was raised in Texas, where she studied ballet and graduated from Southern Methodist University. She now resides in San Francisco. Her new book, "The Kosher Billionaire's Secret Recipe," is loaded with lifestyle advice and mouthwatering recipes. To learn more: www.stacycohen.com.

If people have never enjoyed kosher food, tell us why they should.

"There are many benefits to eating kosher. My recipes are not at all like the kosher dishes of the past, or like what your grandmother used to cook, which may have been heavy and/or salty. With my healthy kosher program, you can enjoy gourmet cuisine that is low-fat and easy to prepare. By taking out a large amount of the salt and letting the true flavor of the foods and recipes shine through, you may even wind up lowering your blood pressure.

Settle the dispute: Best pastrami sandwiches and potato knishes in New York City can be found at what restaurant?

"Deli Kasbah has the best pastrami sandwiches and potato knishes in New York City."

A kosher food that should be in everyone's cupboard or fridge:

"I believe everyone should have whole-wheat matzoh in their cupboard, because it's not only delicious, it's literally edible history. It is the symbol for Passover, freedom and humility."

PAN-ROASTED CHICKEN IN WHITE WINE WITH WILD RICE AND CHANTERELLES

"An opulent dish perfect for the most elegant dinner party," Stacy says.

- 1 cup wild rice
- 3 cups water
- 1/2 teaspoon Kosher salt
- 2 large whole skinless boneless chicken breasts, 12–14 ounces each, split in half
- 4 tablespoons mixed chopped herbs such as rosemary, sage, thyme and basil
- 4 teaspoons olive oil
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed and finely chopped
- 12 leaves flat leaf parsley, roughly chopped
- 12 ounces chanterelle mushrooms, rinsed in warm water, large stems peeled, large mushrooms halved, small left whole.
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 1/2 cup chicken stock
- 10 ounces baby spinach
- 1 teaspoon butter substitute

Combine rice, water and salt in a small saucepan, bring to a boil over high heat. Reduce heat and simmer covered for 45 minutes or until the water has absorbed and the rice is tender. Butterfly each breast half and place skin side down on a clean surface. Season each half with salt and pepper and 1 tablespoon of herbs. Roll each breast and tie with kitchen twine or secure with toothpicks.

Heat 2 teaspoons olive oil in an 8-inch nonstick skillet over high heat until hot. Sear chicken, rotating for 1-2 minutes, until golden brown all over. In a separate oven-proof skillet, warm the remaining olive oil over medium heat. Add garlic and parsley and sauté for 30 seconds; add mushrooms and sauté 3 minutes until tender.

Place chicken on top of mushrooms. Add white wine and stock and bring to boil. Place the pan in the oven and roast 15-20 minutes until chicken is cooked through. Heat the butter substitute in a 12-inch skillet over medium heat until hot. Add spinach and cook, stirring, for 1-2 minutes until wilted; season with salt and pepper. Makes 4 servings.

To Serve: Spoon wild rice into each of 4 warm soup plates. Top rice with spinach. Slice each chicken breast on angle into 1/2-inch thick rounds. Arrange chicken over spinach, spoon pan sauce and mushrooms over all and serve.

Chicken and Dressing Bake

Do you have people in your family who are only looking for the dressing bowl at the holidays? Here's a dish that is quick and easy to stir up to satisfy that dressing craving!

- 1 1/2 cups diced celery
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 cups (3 ounces) purchased unseasoned dry bread cubes
- 1 1/2 cups (8 ounces) diced, cooked chicken breast
- 1 (10 3/4-ounce) can Healthy Request Cream of Chicken Soup
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
- 1/8 teaspoon black pepper

Preheat oven to 350 F. Spray an 8-by-8-inch baking dish with butter-flavored cooking spray. In a large skillet sprayed with butter-flavored cooking spray, sauté celery and onion for 6 to 8 minutes.

Remove from heat. Stir in bread cubes. Add chicken, chicken soup, water, poultry seasoning and black pepper. Mix gently to combine. Evenly spread mixture into prepared baking dish. Cover with foil. Bake for 30 minutes.

Uncover and continue baking for 15 minutes. Place baking dish on wire rack and let set for 5 minutes. Divide into 4 servings.

HINTS: 1) Pepperidge Farm bread cubes work great. 2) If you don't have leftovers, purchase a chunk of cooked chicken breast from your local deli. Leftover turkey also will work.

Health Awareness

Safely Switching Medicine

(NAPS)—Thousands of Americans switch medicines throughout the year—whether it's switching from a brand-name drug to a generic version, or from one brand-name drug to a different one that's meant to have the same effect.

However, before you switch medicines, it's important to talk to your doctor and to remember these tips:

• Many factors affect your body's ability to benefit from a specific medicine. Discuss this with your doctor whenever you are getting a new prescription of any kind.

It's important to talk to your doctor before switching medicines.

• Keep in mind that similar medicines may work differently in your body and switching could even be dangerous. Pay close attention to any reaction whenever you are taking a new medicine and notify your doctor immediately if you have side effects or changes in your health.

• If you and your doctor decide to switch medicines, be sure to follow up regularly to make sure your new medicine is working for you.

For more tips, visit the Web site www.RetireSafe.org.
